For a contaminated land risk assessment, the CLIENT agrees to pay the agreed fees irrespective of the REGULATOR’S DECISION – The final decision on issues relating to risk from contamination on a site legally rests with both the local authority contaminated land officer and/or the Environment Agency who are termed the regulators. SES Ltd undertake the assessment of a site to reach a decision on risk which is both factually correct and beneficial to our clients. These benefits include the actual risk status, the clients budget and also development schedule. SES Ltd endeavour to undertake this work to the highest standards and in accordance with current guidance. Guidance information can be interpreted differently between local authority and agency officers across the UK . We therefore use our experience to reach a decision which will be accepted by the regulators in the CLIENT’S site location in addition to meeting the other criteria listed above. Cases may occasionally arise when some regulators may not agree with our decision on risk and they may express their assessment on our decision for example by stating our report is ‘not acceptable’ is ‘not up to standard’ or ‘does not take account of current guidance. SES Ltd does not accept regulator statements on the quality of our reports but may (sometimes after assessment of new information supplied by the regulator) accept their final decision on the risk. SES Ltd will address regulator queries on a report (within reason) as part of our ‘after sales’ service. Therefore the client agrees to pay for the work undertaken within the work schedule and will not withhold fees as a result of a decision made by a regulator.
